Once there was a little boy named
Mr. Streit, he wore jeans very tight.

He had very good looking hair,
that all of the bullies wanted to tear.

Mr. Streit was walking to school, and his hair fell off so he looked like a fool.

A bully swooped in and took Mr. Streit's hair, which left him saying "Hey that isn't fair!"

He walked right back home, so people wouldn't call his head foam

He told his mom about it about it, and she felt bad when he pouted.

On that very same day, they went online and found some good hair on eBay.

They waited a week. When it came in the mail, they saw it and said "Eek!"

They looked on Amazon this time, because wouldn't pay eBay a dime.

They were amazed! When it took only 2 days.
For it was Amazon Prime, which saves a lot of time.

He went to school the next day, and everyone liked his hair in a cool kind of way.

Thanks
An Tonib.

Nice hair Streit!

He told everyone he got it on Amazon, so they would know what to get their stuff on.

He told them not to use eBay,
for untrustworthy were they.

He never shed tears, for twenty-five more years.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Everett Arden was born and raised in Minneapolis, MN, with a sister, and a dog in his teen years. He played organized soccer and hockey, and other sports just for fun. He was very competitive as a kid, and could never quite take losing.

Tennis and life camps at Gustavus Adolphus college truly inspired him into being the man he is today. Today he is 12 years old, just trying to enjoy his youth.
